

Niklas Törneke is a Swedish psychiatrist and licenced psychotherapist with more than 30 years experience of clinical work. He belongs to the original group of peer reviewed ACT trainers and is an awarded fellow of the association of contextual behavioral science (ACBS). Alongside his own clinical work he has been training and supervising other psychotherapists both in Sweden and internationally for many years. He has authored and co-authored several bookchapters and books with the special focus of applying basic behavioral principles to everyday clinical work, such as Learning RFT. An introduction to relational frame theory and its clinical application (2010) and Metaphor in practice. A professionals guide to using the science of language in psychotherapy (2017).
